BY LINDSAY BROCK/JUMP MEDIA

Manchester, VT, is the kind of place that captures the heart and keeps families coming back summer after summer. In addition to excellent shopping and dining opportunities, there's the charm of a gentle pace of life, the family-friendly atmosphere, and six weeks of equine-inspired entertainment.

When the weather begins to warm in the Northeast, the equestrian community seeks out unique and charming spots for summer showing. One of the most popular spots for cool mountain breezes and hot competition is Manchester. Home to the Vermont Summer Festival, nestled just outside the village, Manchester is the perfect destination for summer horse showing.

The Vermont Summer Festival once alternated locations between various ski towns, even running in two different locations in one year. Roughly 25 years ago, the circuit made a permanent move to the Manchester area to better serve the largest concentration of their exhibitors. The country roads of Southern Vermont lead to a relaxed atmosphere with exciting competition and an all-inclusive environment that continually ranks the Vermont Summer Festival among the most popular shows in North America.

True to form as a mountain town, Manchester offers outdoor activities at every turn. From cycling to mountain biking to cliff jumping and climbing, Vermont won't disappoint the adventure-seeker. For the shopaholic, there is no place quite like the Manchester Designer Outlets. Quaint shops line the streets with boutique and name brand retail opportunities that are the perfect midday or after horse show retreat.

Then there is the food! Dining while visiting Manchester for the Vermont Summer Festival is an experience all its own with restaurants spanning the gamut of food options. Whether it's a wood-fired pizza from Depot 62 Bistro & Café, dinner at The Chantecler just up the road from the Vermont Summer Festival, or a night out at The Silver Fork, Manchester and its surrounding areas are a foodie's paradise. 📍

THE CHANTECLEER RESTAURANT

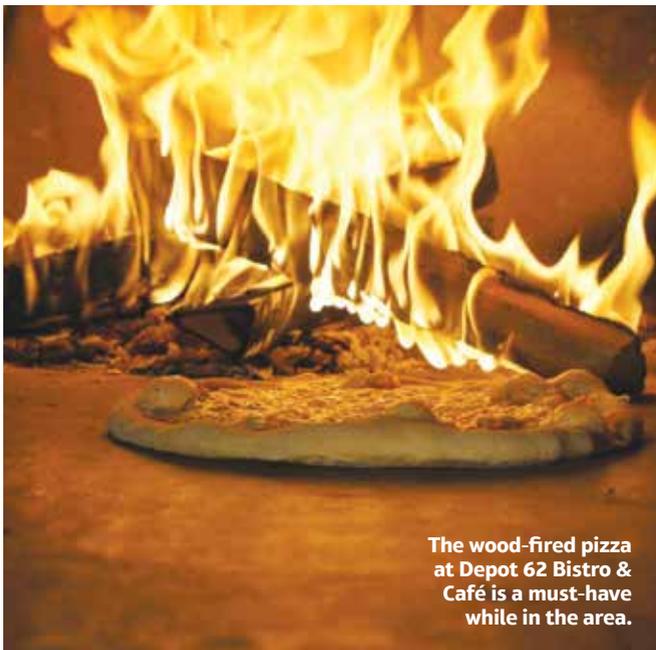

A star of the local dining scene, Chantecleer sits in a remodeled dairy barn and offers fine American cuisine with European sophistication. We recommend the parmesan crusted halibut.
