

Bringing you news, advice, and tools to improve your barn management experience

On the Blog

Horse moms are still moms, right? While you're out searching for the perfect Mother's Day gift for all the mothers in your life, here is a list of things that horse moms everywhere would love to receive this Mother's Day.

1. Photography session. Contact a local photographer and schedule a photo session, whether it be horse and rider or just the horse on a black or white background. Professional photos are something a horse mom treasures forever, and photographers can be quite brilliant when it comes to capturing the unique bond between a horse and its person.

2. Subscription box. These have taken the world by storm, and the equestrian world has caught the bug lately. Give the gift that keeps on giving by having a subscription box sent every quarter with fun surprises in it each time. These often include items you can't find in stores, so she'll be getting something unique in the mail for herself or her horse.

Eight Things to Consider When Preparing to Ship Your Horse

The Plaid Horse

Whether you ship your horse frequently or only once in a while, it's always helpful to bear in mind the things that make shipping less stressful. As a horse owner and a barn manager, I have had to organize shipments for my own horse and others, and these are a few of the tips I recommend each time you ship your horse.

1. Make packing lists. The BarnManager app is equipped with digital packing and to-do lists, so you can create your list on the go and add to it as you think of things prior to your trip. If you are shipping with someone else, communicate about how much space there will be for your belongings. If you will be pressed for space, try to only bring the absolute essentials or arrange for some other way to transport the things that won't fit. Also consider what you will need first at the final destination and how easy it is to access quickly when you arrive.
