

Days End Farm Horse Rescue Welcomes Spring Interns

Days End Farm Horse Rescue (DEFHR), located in Woodbine, Maryland, will welcome three spring 2023 interns to the farm: Dinuri, Julissa, and Rebecca. They will be participating in our Equine Care and Rehabilitation internship program that enables both local and international students to gain significant equine husbandry experience and training in basic rehabilitation and equine psychology.

Dinuri is currently a student at Towson University in Towson, Maryland, and is joining DEFHR as a non-residential intern this spring and summer. Dinuri plans to pursue a career as a veterinarian after her studies.

Julissa comes to DEFHR from the University of Puerto Rico in Mayagüez, Puerto Rico. She is majoring in Animal Science and Pre-Veterinary with aspirations to eventually become a veterinarian.

Rebecca comes to DEFHR from Nottingham Trent University in Nottingham, England, where she's majoring in Equine Behavior, Health, and Welfare. She has an interest in pursuing a career within the equine welfare industry.

Welcome, Dinuri, Julissa, and Rebecca!

Volunteer at DEFHR

Saving the lives of horses would not be possible without the dedication and selfless actions of volunteers.

Each year at DEFHR, volunteers of all ages, abilities, and experience levels provide more than 55,000 hours of service. DEFHR accepts volunteers that are interested in hands-on time with the horses and those that would prefer to contribute in a non-equine capacity.

If you are interested in joining our wonderful team of volunteers, consider attending one of our orientations which take place on the second Saturday and fourth Tuesday of each month.

Click the button below to learn more about volunteering at DEFHR and to register for an orientation.

Young Equestrian Spreads DEFHR's Mission

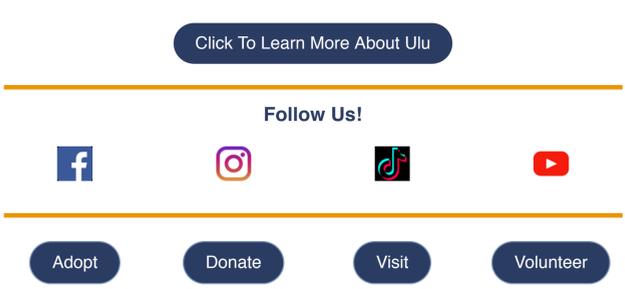

Young equestrian and Washington, D.C. native Haley showed her support for horses in need by participating in her school's Gifts for Good annual service project. During the project, students create a booth with a poster board, and with the help of the school nurse/head of service, they create something to sell in order to raise money for a cause of their choosing.

Haley had a goal of raising $180 for DEFHR by hand-making and selling clear soaps with boot-shaped erasers inside and a horseshoe ornament. Not only did Haley meet her goal, she also surpassed it by raising more than $250.

DEFHR recognizes Haley's desire to make an impact for the horses, not only through raising funds but also by sharing the mission of DEFHR.

Thank you Haley and those in our community who inspire us all to be change-makers when we have the opportunity!

"The Cost of Rescuing Horses"

In January 2021, Esmeralda and 18 of her herdmates arrived at DEFHR in critical condition. While it's easy to understand the tangible costs of caring for critically ill equines, there are costs that are difficult to quantify, such as the many hours of phone calls, Zoom meetings, and documentation necessary to achieve justice for the grave negligence and cruelty these horses experienced. Tap the button below to read about what the price of justice really is in our monthly column on Horse Network.

Featured Horse of the Month: Under Ulu's Umbrella

Six-year-old Kentucky Mountain Horse mare, 14.3hh

Under Ulu's Umbrella or "Ulu" in the barn is a six-year-old Kentucky Mountain Horse (gaited) mare looking for a trail or endurance home. Ulu started developing a lovely gait, has a fun canter, and is ridden both English and Western. Ulu has experience out on the trails, does well in the ring, and enjoys strolls around the farm. She has also begun jumping small fences up to two feet in height. Ulu has a solid foundation in groundwork, including lunge work, obstacle work, round penning, and a long lining. She is happy with a job and would love to find a consistent active riding home.

Visit defhr.org/available-horses/ and email adopt@DEFHR.org for details on Ulu.
