

HAMILTON FARM

Home of the U.S. Equestrian Team Foundation.

This beloved equestrian landmark is a secluded and hidden gem located in bucolic Gladstone in the heart of the fox-hunting country of New Jersey. The historic stable, grounds, and show ring are available for horse shows, weddings, festivals, corporate functions, and other events of all kinds.

Hamilton Farm is located a half mile down a country lane, close to major roads, but quietly situated, surrounded by a beautiful golf course. Best known as the home of the United States Equestrian Team Foundation, Hamilton Farm was the first training headquarters for the team, with the original barns, rings, staff quarters, trophy room, and more still there and in use. While it's no longer the training center for the U.S. teams, it is the headquarters for the USET Foundation staff. It has become a historic landmark of the sport, giving it deep meaning for many equestrians.

The Rotunda's arched central entrance leads to an octagonal space with fired brick walls and floors, decorated with plaques from international competitions. A high glass ceiling surrounded by glazed tile makes for an unforgettable space that is a historic and stately place for a wedding.

A door off the Rotunda leads to the second-floor Trophy Room that features hand-carved walnut panels and trophy cases depicting the history of the United States Equestrian Team. In the center of the room is a glass wall which allows guests to observe the Rotunda below.

With idyllic outdoor spaces and horses as a backdrop, there is ample opportunity for beautiful photography and memorable moments.

MADYA RUNNARI/PHOTO