

Days End Farm Rescue Welcomes Spring Interns

Days End Farm Horse Rescue (DEFHR), located in Woodbine, Maryland, welcomes two interns to the farm for the Spring 2024 Session. Aleka and Alexis will be participating in our Equine Care and Rehabilitation internship program that enables both local and international students to gain significant equine husbandry experience and training in basic rehabilitation and equine psychology.

Aleka has a Bachelor of Science degree from the University of Maryland and is taking a gap year before furthering her studies at veterinary school.

Alexis has worked as a veterinary technician and will be gaining more experience as a DEFHR intern before applying to veterinary school.

Horse Network "Preventing Equine Neglect and Abuse Through Owner-to-Owner Assistance Programs"

On average, a horse will find itself in transition seven times in its life. This rate of change makes it challenging to keep track of a horse and to understand when a horse is at risk. DEFHR's Owner 2 Owner Program provides unique services designed to help horse owners safely transition horses when they can no longer care for their horse. Featured Horse of the Month: Blue Bell

29-year-old Shetland Pony x Miniature Horse mare, 10.1hh

Blue Bell is a super senior looking for a safe place to land in her final years. Blue Bell dances to the beat of her own drum. What Blue Bell wants Blue Bell gets, but at her age, how can you say no? When you lead her from her stall to her paddock, Blue Bell will show you the way. She enjoys affection and has a humorous personality to keep you smiling. With all of her hair, she would be perfect for kids to love on and brush. If you are willing to provide some extra care and attention to an older pony, Blue Bell may be your gal.

Visit defhr.org/available-horses/ and email adopt@DEFHR.org for details on Blue Bell.
